Much alarm was felt last week about the earth dam which was leaking badly and threatened to cause considerable damage if the leak could not be stopped. A force of men worked all night and succeeded in partially stopping it. Friday a huge block of ice started down the stream and when it struck the wooden dam it carried away a third of the dam and the full force of the water contained in the mill pond was thrown against the stone sheds, and a part of the earth dam was gulled out so that at present it is very unsafe. A temporary dam or breakwater will be put in this week to carry the force of the water the other side of the island. The loss of the dam falls very heavily on the millowners and stone cutters, as no business can be done there till a new one is erected.

C. E. Dudley is building an extra story on his mill and will make chair rockers and finish them up here instead of shipping them in the rough as previously.

He will commence this week to saw out logs and dress lumber for O. F. Harvey, who cannot run his mill since the dam went out.

Better Than Phosphate as Fertilizer Farmers who have had experience with so-called phosphates and other prepared fertilizers, and have concluded that they are dear at any price, will be interested in the following letter from J. W. Page, formerly of Cambridge, Vt., with reference to Page's Fertilizing Salt. Here it is: "Used Salt on piece of sowed ground, phosphate on adjacent piece. Sowed entire piece to barley. The Salt-sowed piece of ground produced the better crop of less than half the expense." C. S. Page of Hyde Park, Vt., delivers this Salt, this year, f. o. b. cars for $3.50 per ton when cash accompanies order, and on carload lots the freight rates to points on the St. J. & L. C. R. R. and on the Passumpsic road north of White River Junction are very low. He will send exact figures on request. Farmers sometimes combine and order a carload and thus save freight.
